JAM IN SIGHT AS LAWMAKERS FINISH PLANS

Both Houses Want to Adjourn May 26, Even at Cost of Night Sessions

FEAR FILIBUSTERS

Can't Sidetrack Any Pet Legislation or Lengthy Conversations Will Start

Washington.—The legislative jam as congressmen endeavor to adjourn is already in sight. Both houses really want to get away on May 26 and there is a sincere effort to rush things through, using night sessions if possible.

But there will be no adjournment without a heavy price being paid by both radicals and conservatives. For it is a simple matter to block adjournment with filibusters. Most of the members want to go to the national conventions. A great many senators and representatives are either delegates to the conventions or will have a leading part to play in the affairs of their respective state delegations.
Sometimes the alignments made in the stress of a political convention have a vital bearing on the opportunity of a senator or representative to be renominated at a later time.

There is no disposition on the part of the party leaders to prolong the session merely to have a vehicle for campaign argument. Enough investigations will be carried on during the recess of congress to give political ammunition to both sides.

The committee investigation campaign expenditures probably will be a continuing body.

Yet while the sentiment for adjournment is virtually unanimous, it goes without saying that if any pet measures of a group is in any way to be sidetracked, there will be considerable conversation on the subject and perhaps a real filibuster until an agreement is reached. Some of the major pieces of legislation are far enough along to warrant the hope of passage. Thus the Muscle Shoals bill was presented to both houses Tuesday and should be disposed of by the Senate by Thursday of this week. The Boulder Dam bill is the unfinished business of the senate where there is talk of a filibuster and it comes up in the house Thursday under a special rule. The shipping bill should be sent to the president for his signature. The big revenue bill, which modifies in many important respects the present tax structure, is still in the Senate with the likelihood that the whole week may be devoted to debate, though its sponsors are anxious to get the measure into conference as quickly as possible because some important changes must be made.

CAUSE MORE DELAY

If a combination of Democrats and western Republicans succeeds in tacking a tariff rider on the revenue bill it will prolong the discussion and cause some delay. For political purposes it would probably satisfy the tariff reform advocates to have the measure knocked out in conference, or perhaps by a vote of the house.

There is no serious attempt to insist on tariff revision at the expense of a failure of the whole tax bill.

GERMAN FLYER BUYS JUNKERS SISTER PLANE

Huenefeld Purchases Sister Ship of Bremen, but Won't Reveal New Plans

Albany, N. Y.—(AP)—Baron Gunther von Huenefeld, backer of the first successful westward flight across the north Atlantic, has purchased the Junkers plane Europa, sister ship of the Bremen, but what flights he plans in the new plane were a matter of conjecture Tuesday.

One report was that the Baron, Captain Koehl and Major Fitzmaurice would attempt a return flight to Europe, having the new plane shipped to New York from Germany. Baron von Huenefeld, however, denies that such are his plans.

He said it was possible that the plane would be shipped to Ireland and that he and Koehl would fly it to Germany to buy it, but that the plans were indefinite. The Baron, an aviation enthusiast, said he had also placed orders for several other planes.

The flight before leaving for Montreal said they had planned to attempt the eastward passage in the Bremen but with the Bremen put out of commission, in an attempt to bring him out from Greenly Island they indicated there was little likelihood of an attempt at a return flight.

COAST GUARDS CAPTURE $300,000 LIQUOR SHIP

Mackinaw City, Mich.—(AP)—A cargo of Canadian liquor, with an estimated value of $300,000 said to be the largest haul ever taken on the Great Lakes, was captured with the tug Geronimo in the Straits of Mackinac
Monday by coast guards.

The Geronimo, a 150-foot vessel loaded at Windsor, Ont., and left Saturday, heading up Lake Huron. The internal revenue office at Sault Ste.
Marie were informed of the boat's approach and the Coast Guard Cutter
Cook was sent to watch the straits.

A small vessel was seen running the straits in the early hours Monday. The Cook steamed out in pursuit. Two shots had to be fired across the tug's bow before it would stop.

Nine men aboard the Geronimo were arrested and the tug was taken to Detroit. Guardsmen said there were 3, 000 cases of liquor abroad.

New York.—(AP)—The name of Dr.
Hideo Noguchi, Japanese scientist, has been added to the list of those who have given their lives in the fight against the dread yellow fever of the tropics.

The Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research, with which he had been connected since its founding in 1904, has been advised that he died at Accra,
on the pestilential Gold coast of Africa,
a victim of the fever whose cause he had just identified by studying his own case.

Dr. Noguchi, who was 31 years old, understood the expedition for the Rockefeller foundation, to which he had been loaned by the institute, last November. At Accra, one of the unhealthiest spots of the globe, he set up his microscope to discover, if pos-and the South American yellow fever.

FUND PROBERS VISIT THREE MORE STATES

Decide Not Enough Information Can Be Secured Directly from Witnesses

Washington.—(AP)—Unable to obtain all the information it seeks from witnesses called to Washington, the senate presidential campaign funds investigating committee has decided to go into Ohio and Indiana and perhaps to West Virginia.

Senator Steiner, Republican, Oregon, chairman of the committee, who returned Tuesday with Senator Bradley, Democrat, New Mexico, from Raleigh, N. C., said the trips would be made before the convening of the Republican national convention at Kansas City on June 12.

In Ohio the committee will seek to ascertain the expenditures by district and county committees, while the primary purpose of the trip to Indiana will be to find out how much money was spent in Allen-co, where a separate organization was set up on behalf of Senator James E. Watson, who carried his state over Herbert Hoover in the primary on May 8.

Turning to the Ohio situation, the committee learned from Carmel Thompson, who managed the Willard-For President campaign that in addition to the $41,216.88 which his committee spent, there were outlays by several county organizations. He said $2,500 had been raised and expended in Cuyahoga-co (Cleveland) to carry on the fight for convention delegates against Secretary Hoover.

The following reductions were voted by both the house and senate and will not be subject to change in the impending conference:

Repeal of the 3 per cent automobile tax, loss in revenue $65,000,000; increase in exemptions for corporations from $2,000 to $3,000 and $23, 000,000 in the senate bill which reduces the corporation rate from 13½
per cent to 12½ per cent, or $164,000, 000 in the house measure which slashes the rate to 11½ per cent.

AGREE ON THREE

The following reductions were voted
not be subject to change in the impending conference:

000 in the house measure which slashes
the rate to 11½ per cent.

Modern ideas of marriage will be used as substitute for the old fashioned marriage bill, it was said.

The tax battle was fought out on party lines almost entirely, the western Republican independents favoring the minimum program of the Republicans.

The committee could get a line on all expenditures in the corporation rate; increase in exemptions allowed under the admission tax, the house voting to raise the 75 cents exemption to $1 and the senate to 43; in the 10 per cent club dues levy; in the graduated scale of lower rates on corporations with incomes under $15,000; in revision of the individual income surtax rates applying on the brackets of $20,000 to $90,000 incomes; and in the taxes on capital stock transfers and future sales of produce.

Corporations get the biggest slice of the tax cut, winning $12,000,000 in the increase in exemptions for corporations from $2,000 to $3,000 and $23, 000,000 in the senate bill which reduces the corporation rate from 13½
per cent to 12½ per cent, or $164,000,

JOHNSTON AND GAGE WIN LEGION AWARDS IN SCHOOL ACTIVITY

Both Have Made Enviable Records During Their Four Years in Local High School

Two seniors Tuesday afternoon received the most coveted prizes offered students of Appleton high school when the American legion medal for proficiency in athletics was awarded to Chester "Swede" Johnston and the craftsmanship shield, emblematic of excellence in scholarship, leadership, character and service, was given to Alloysus Gage.

The presentation was one of the features of the annual class day exercises held on the South steps of the school building.

Johnston was given the medal for excellence in all major sports including track, basketball and football. He has been conspicuous in each of these sports, winning an enviable reputation in the Fox River Valley Conference. He has been fullback on the grid team for the last three years; the unanimous choice for all-star Fox River Valley Conference fullback for the past two years; has been basketball-forward and guard on the team for the past two years and a track letter winner in the past two years, being captain in 1928. He was undefeated in the valley conference track meet for two years in three events, 100 yard dash, broad jump and shotput, and holds the conference records in all three. He is considered the best high school broad jumper in Wisconsin and one of the best in the midwest with a consistent record of well over 21 feet.

Those students who in former years have won the award were: Reed Havens, 1922; Harold Bries, 1923; Arnold Hillman, 1924; Claude Bowley, 1925; Carl Voecks, 1926, and Norbert Pfeifer, 1927.

Gage was awarded the Craftsmanship shield for his scholarship, which has been consistently excellent; his leadership which was dependable and intelligent and his spirit, thoughtful, cooperative and mindful of the values of high school life. The honor has become the most cherished award granted an individual student.

Gage was president of his class in his junior and senior years; took part in the senior class play; was active in debate work in his last two years of high school work; was winner of the Fischer Extravaganza in 1927; third place in the Fox river valley Extravaganza contest; was awarded first place in the William B. Heiss Oratorical contest; boy mayor in 1928; elected to National Honor society; on four year senior honor roll; keeper of the flag in 1927; student council representative and also a member of the Hi-Y club in 1925 and 1928.

Former shield winners were: Edith Wood, 1917; Elmer Root, 1917; Margaret Anderson, 1918; William Buchanan, 1919; Reed Havens, 1920; La Vahn Maesch, 1921; Frank Hopp, 1922; Beverly Murphy, 1923; Richard Neller, 1924; Carl Schleifer, 1925; John Cudlin, 1926; and William Lee in 1927.

Thousands Of Fishermen Cast Lines At Fremont

Thousands of fishermen from all parts of the state and midwest gathered at Fremont over the weekend to enjoy their favorite sport. And thousands did enjoy it as many large catches were reported.

And outside of the fishermen there were the bait dealers—boat renting companies, fish tackle stores, restaurant keepers and hotel owners who reaped their annual harvest as the fishermen swarmed the little village.

Parking space in the village was at a premium as the streets were lined with automobiles of every possible make—and bearing license plates from at least ten different states.

Parking space on the Wolf river and the little bridge across the river in the village also was at a premium.

Hundreds of boats were used and many fishermen, who counted on renting a boat to get on the water were out of luck because the supply was contracted for hours in advance. Many resorted to a line and sinker from the bridge—but the catches there were not as good as on the water.

Some enthusiastic fishermen unable to get rooms in the local hotels, pitched tents wherever they could find shade and remained to be on the water the next morning.

The white bass run lasts about two weeks each spring; when the fish are on their ways to the small streams which feed the Wolf river to spawn and then for a shorted period while the fish come back.

The male fish precede the females up the river and they usually travel in the deepest channels going up but start out over the river going down.

Sportsmen here say that during the last year or two the number of bass in Lake Winnebago has increased tremendously as a result of the war on illegal pirates, who use nets. They say that if the netting could be stopped altogether Lake Winnebago would soon become one of the best fishing waters in this vicinity because of the natural spawning grounds on the Wolf river.

The white bass run is expected to be over this week and the number of fishermen will gradually diminish.

COMMISSION REGULATES VISIBLE GAS PUMPS

Following several fires in visible gasoline pumps, the industrial commission at Madison has announced that such pumps will no longer be permitted unless fire hazards are adequately guarded against. The decision followed a hearing by the commission, at which it attempted to ascertain how the dangers of such pumps could be guarded and under what conditions the installation and use of such pumps in Wisconsin could be permitted with reasonable safety. If the hazards are eliminated to the satisfaction of the commission, such pumps may be used in connection with underground storage tanks.

ALL POLITICIANS WILL NOT CONCEDE HOOVER'S VICTORY

Some of Them Seem to Think That "Dark Horse" Has Chance to Win

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—There are many stubborn critters who refuse to admit that Herbert Hoover has the Republican nomination dangling from his girdle and the best he can get on it here is even money.

But Herbert's hand is loaded with so many trump cards that the chances of the opposition lie chiefly in somewhat desperate measures.

He might miserably misplay his hand and then again, the boy who now looks like a loser may steal his cards or upset the table. He may know they will be either or both if they can.

On the face of things, it ought to be about over. Hoover has far more delegates than any competitor, so many that the field is united in an attempt to get him.

He is the only candidate who has aroused any particular sentiment in the politically powerful east, along with the border states, the south and the far west.

He is the only candidate in his party who has shown a disposition to go out and fight for primary votes and he has done better in those primaries than many of his own supporters expected him to do.

Now he has the endorsement of the saintly Mr. Mellon, with its tacit inference that Mr. Coolidge isn't unkindly disposed toward him, and is more than ever tagged as the nearest approach to an administration candidate.

It will be hard for the party to take Mr. Hoover. To take him it must violate various precedents, something the party hates to do. For instance, with the exception of Grant, no man has had the Republican nomination without a substantial record of partisan Republicanism behind him. No Republican president has had a nomination after being opposed at the outset by a united sectional opposition like Lowden's. And a few more things like that, always remembering that Mr. Hoover has broken precedents before.

The trouble is that it is likely to prove much harder to deny him than to accept him. It's true that many Hoover delegates are not of the sort who can be expected to stay with them through fire and water for 30 or 40 ballots, but more importantly it's also true that they're his to start with and that, unless someone can drag on Coolidge or Hughes into the plot, they won't for awhile have anywhere else to go—and by that time Hoover is likely to have been nominated.

Furthermore, Mr. Hoover represents the administration policies, and the only other important candidate does not. It's possible that an anti-administration man will be chosen, but darned improbable. And again, this is no safe year to tick Mr. Hoover with a dark pony: If any horse flesh figures at all, it must be a big black stallion like Coolidge, Hughes or Dawes. Coolidge can only be taken as a desperate measure, Hughes is a good bet to beat Al Smith in New York but not worth a whoop in the west, and Dawes is poison to the administration.

The issue will be decided, as usual, in that powerful contiguous group of states, Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois are against Hoover, but he has broken in New York, Ohio and Massachusetts and now Andrew Mellon shows a disposition to give him Pennsylvania.

Obviously Mellon holds the balance of power. Apparently he is anxious to be able to say, after the nomination is made: "I did it." Of course it would have been much kinder if the old gent had given Hoover the last full measure of endorsement in the form of an instructed delegation instead of making his followers wait until convention time before feeling able to draw a long breath.

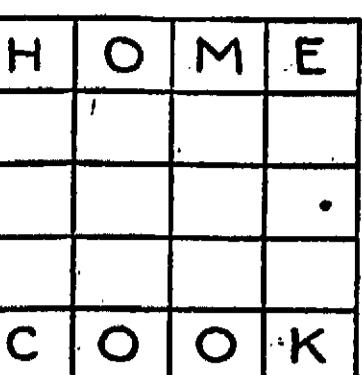

But if he can't have Coolidge or Hughes, it's virtually certain to wind up for Hoover, regardless of the fact that Gen. Atterbury of the Pennsylvania railroad, the new Pennsylvania national committeeman, is violently anti-Hoover.

It's virtually certain, that is, unless the anti-Hooverites dig a successful pit or plant a bomb that really explodes. There are enough slippery Hoover politicians to help him avoid the pitfalls, but they'll be the first to run if any bombs go off. And Mellon, of course, has left himself a good-sized hole through which to climb back.

Just now Hoover is in the position of a man walking home through a tough section with a million dollars in his pocket. He has bodyguards, but every bandit in town knows what he's carrying.

It's easy to COOK at HOME in letter golf. Put in four easy strokes. You'll find one solution on page 9.

THE RULES

1—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEN.

2—You can change only one letter at a time.

3—You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.

4—The order of letters cannot be changed.

PACKED HOUSE AT MUSICAL COMEDY

Many Pretty Songs and Dances in Show, In Hot
Tamales Land

Another packed house greeted the mixed choir of St. Joseph church at St. Joseph hall Monday night when they presented the musical comedy, In Hot Tamale Land, for the second time.

Pretty songs and dances and special costume made the presentation attractive. Special solo numbers by Raymond Dohr, playing the part of Bobby Hunter, the hero, and Miss Marie Alfred, as Eleanor, the heroine, were well received. A solo dance and song number by Miss Cecile Haug was especially well done and she received several encores.

Margaret Keller Takes Part of "Bab" in Production of That Name

Ziegfeld did his best for the tender portion of the race. Now that the American girl has been glorified in general, "Bab," the annual senior class play of Appleton high school, will glorify in particular the spoiled American girl at Fischer's Appleton theatre, Monday, May 28.

Margaret Keller will take the lead as the pertulant seventeen year old whose father had never told her "no," and Jack Roudubush will be her leading man, taking the role of Carter Brooks, who is led a pretty chase by her whims and caprices. Miss Keller has been very prominent in dramatic work for several years. Last year she had the lead in the junior class play; she has won second place in the local declamatory contest, presented a Red Cross anti-tuberculosis skit with Aloysius Gage at the Appleton theatre, and done much reading work in the city.

This is the first dramatic work Jack Roudubush has done here since he has come to Appleton high school from Duluth, Minn., only last year.

Phyllis Ornstein, who takes the part of Bab's gushy friend, has had leading parts in the school operettas for the past three years. She won first place in the local declamatory contest, and third in the Fox River Valley league contest. She had a leading part in the junior play last year.

Aloysius Gage, who is one of the leading male characters in "Bab," was in the junior play last year, won first place in the local extempore contest, and third in the Fox River Valley, placed in local and league contests in oratory, was president of his class for three years, and was Boy Mayor of Appleton.

Carlton Roth, Robert Rechner, and Donald McMahon have all had stage experience. Mr. Rechner had the lead in the junior play last year. Mr. McMahon has just won $100 scholarship in the annual forensic contest held at Lawrence college, and Mr. Roth won second place in the local oratory contest.

Serenic Parker, who plays the part of Bab's envied older sister, has had much experience in operetta work and was in the junior play last year.

INSPECTOR GOING TO PLANNING CONFERENCE

A special meeting of the city council called for Wednesday evening has been postponed to Monday evening May 28, because several aldermen and the mayor will be attending the League of Wisconsin Municipalities convention at Milwaukee. The delay will permit the council to discuss at least two additional sections of the revised ordinances.

The meeting Wednesday was called to discuss the health ordinance but Monday's session probably will permit reading of the zoning ordinance together with the sections on fire regulations and health. The ordinances will be formally passed at the June meeting of the council.

GO AHEAD WITH PLAN FOR BUILDING NEW BRIDGE AT MENASHA

State Highway Commission Says Affair With Traction Company Is Purely Local

Menasha—Assurance that the Wisconsin highway commission intends to go ahead with the construction of the new Tayco-ct bridge is contained in a letter which Mayor Walter E. Held has just received from that body. The commission claims there is nothing further to delay matters and that they have ordered the Strauss Bascule Bridge company to revise plans to remove the effects of the Traction company's presence and will proceed to let the contract on that basis.

The letter reads:

"On May 5 we wrote you in connection with the possibility of the Traction company wishing to have provision made for electric car service over Tayco-ct bridge. Since then we have received a reply from them in which they advise that in view of the order recently issued by the Wisconsin Railroad Commission that they do not care to be involved whatever in the reconstruction of this bridge."

It seems to us as though if the Traction company does not care to be interested in this proposition, all we can do is to have our plans revised and remove the effects of their presence.

We have now ordered the Strauss Bascule Bridge company to make these revisions and we trust this action on our part will meet with your approval. It seems to us as though if the traction company does not care to be involved we cannot force them to have provision made for their tracks.

It also seems that if the city believes that the Traction company is obliged to you that this is now entirely a matter between your city and the Traction company and we do not believe that it should hold up the construction of this bridge any longer.

You are, therefore, to consider this as final and official notice of our intention to proceed with the preparations of the plans without making provisions for the Traction company's tracks and to let contract for the bridge on that basis. If this is satisfactory we must know it at once by official action on your part.

THE WAR IN CHINA

The United States has notified the Nationalist government of South China that it will be held responsible for American life and property in North China. Civil war has now reached that region. The final collision between the South forces and those of Chang Tso-lin is about to take place in Peking and Tientsin. The expectation is that the Nationalists will emerge victorious. Chang Tso-lin's normal line of retreat, in case he loses, would be into Manchuria, where the Japanese have forbidden him to go. Foreign governments fear there will be rioting when Peking and Tientsin are taken. That is why the state department has warned the Nationalists to keep their forces out of areas set aside for foreigners and to accord them every possible protection.

There are American marines and blue jackets in the war zone, and they will be used if necessary to safeguard the lives and property of our nationals. Both alone and in conjunction with the troops of other foreign governments, they have proved effective in China in time of civil strife and uprisings, and can be relied upon in emergency against undisciplined troops and mobs.

Equally significant is our notice to the Nationalists that "we have no intention of interfering in Chinese domestic affairs." This means that we shall take no part in the civil conflict, and that we will not become involved in controversies between Chinese and other governments touching the lives and interests of foreigners. We shall let Japan pursue the course she has undertaken in Shantung, and we will raise no objection presumably to what amounts to a declaration of a temporary protectorate in Manchuria. These are issues that do not touch the right of self-government or of self-determination of the Chinese, but deal solely with the preservation of law and order outside the fighting zones, and with the maintenance of peace in regions where its disturbance is unnecessary and would only lead to international complications. We are willing to take Japan's word that her policy both in Shantung and Manchuria is not essentially political but economic. Should further events disclose it to be otherwise, it would be a proper subject for consideration by the League of Nations.

Our policy in China has been consistent, sound and above criticism. We have kept strictly within our rights, and yet have not hesitated to exercise them for the protection of life and property. The Chinese know that they have no better friend in the world than the United States; they know it will never use force or diplomacy to oppress them. They, therefore, invariably respect its demands, as they will undoubtedly do in the present instance. They know that while it will not interfere to save China from herself or from her foes, it will always use its influence for the preservation of her territorial integrity and political freedom.

WHAT ABOUT THE NEAR EAST?

"What's the use trying to help the Near east?" many people ask. "Turks and Armenians and such. They never were any good, and aren't now. Why spend money on them?" It must be confessed there is something in this point of view. With limited money for charity, it does often seem as if it ought to be spent on constructive projects for people who can take hold and really do things for themselves afterwards, rather than on projects which seem merely to be pouring money and help down deep holes, for people who may never amount to anything.

But the fact is that the children who have been fed and clothed and sheltered and educated by the Women's Hospitals committees in the Near east have justified every cent of money and every ounce of energy put into them. One has only to look at the before-and-after pictures of the little wretches left by the war and the fine, strong young people they have become.

In the matter of the colleges of the Near east, Robert College and Constantinople Women's College of that city, the American University of Beirut, Syria, the International College of Smyrna, Turkey, Athens college in Greece and the Sofia American schools in Bulgaria, the same hopeful situation is found. Students of 29 nations attend these six colleges. These young people growing up together are acquiring an international point of view. They are learning American ideals of peace, of amity, of freedom with friendship. In education such as this lies the best hope of world peace.

THE WELLAND OFFSET

Canada notifies the United States that in paying for the projected St. Lawrence seaway it thinks it should have credit for the cost of the Welland canal, which would mean an offset of some $50,000,000, plus a further credit for the present St. Lawrence ship canal and the Canadian Soo locks amounting to some $35,000,000. It is willing to grant a similar offset for the United States of about $44,000,000 for dredging on Detroit and St. Clair rivers and building American locks at the Soo.

Why not? The great lakes navigation system is a unit. The St. Lawrence seaway would be useless without the Welland canal, which Canada has enlarged progressively to care for increasing trade. Even Gov. Al Smith's absurd "All-American" seaway across New York state would have to depend upon the "All-Canadian" Welland canal for whatever business it got. Canada's proposal in effect is that the two nations complete a twenty-seven foot waterway to the sea. Each shall count as an offset the cost of work already done and perform whatever additional work is necessary in its part of the great lakes system. Counting sums already spent on this job Canada estimates the completed construction necessary will have cost it about $17,000,000 more than the United States.

Haggling over a few millions one way or another, in this necessary project would be a costly mistake. Power, not taxes, may be expected to defray the entire cost in the long run. And that does not take account of the incalculable but vast savings to American shippers in the middle west through the advantage of seaway freights.

If American acquiescence in the Canadian plan of payment will speed the seaway we can well afford to grant the Welland canal offset. And the offset deserves to be granted on its merits.

A VALUABLE BOOK

Not long ago a young American woman went to Germany to visit her uncle, a jeweler. He sold jewelry to many Americans and had a little book in which he marked down each sale—article, price, name and address of purchaser and date. He died, and the young woman took the book home with her.

Reaching America, she called on the customs men, and showed them the book. They read with interest and began tracing the sales. Most of the purchasers, they found, had smuggled their jewels into the country—an act for which there is a heavy fine. Uncle Sam's coffers were vastly enriched.

And the young woman? The customs regulations give an informer 25 per cent of all fines collected. To date this young woman has realized just $200,000 on her little book; and the end is not yet.

We don't know just what the moral may be. Perhaps it is that in dealing with the customs men you must be very, very careful.

LOANS TO SALARIED MEN

New York City seems to have found a way to put the loan shark out of business.

The loan shark, you know, is the usurer who makes loans to salaried workers and generally collects something like 500 per cent before the loan is paid. Usually he operates just within the law; it is almost impossible to put a crimp in his activities.

But now the National City Bank, New York's largest, announces it will make loans of $50 to $100 to salaried people without collateral. Six per cent will be charged and the borrower will have a year in which to pay.

This is a magnificent undertaking. It will enable the poor man who needs money to get it at a decent rate. And observers in New York believe that it will send the loan shark away for good. No one will want to borrow at exorbitant rates when he can get money from a reputable bank for six per cent.

Two young men of Lynn, Mass., told police they had been forced to walk home after taking a couple of young ladies out for a ride. The boys shouldn't take such chances.

SNIFF AND SHRUG IF YOU SMELL ANYTHING

It is being done. You can't go far socially until the most exclusive people have sniffed you out and pronounced you acceptable. No use looking for a job if the big "executive" in the shop is well up on his halitosis complex. It is indeed a sad situation. How in the world is one going to find out? You can't ask a good friend to test you for bromidrosis or whatnots have you. And it is out of the question to approach strangers or distant acquaintances with a request that they sniff you over. So there is only one thing left—you must suffice that you've got it and enter upon a lifelong practice of using Nasal Sniff or Soleklear or No-nose just as you have already learned to use Soap Incognito for your teeth.

Some propaganda distributed to the press under the euphonious but complimentary title "Women's Page Miscellany" by a combine of soap manufacturers who are sanguineous enough in their announcements of the one-man health magazine would solemnly assure the credulous sex to wit and as follows:

"The skin is not merely a casing for the body, as some people suppose, but an organ just as truly as is the heart, the kidneys or the lungs."

And moreover, the most hard working organ in the body (class I English please excuse the soap makers' awkwardness), for it produces oil, sweat, hair and milk; absorbs, throws off wastes, breathes, and regulates the temperature of the body."

The truth is that the skin never absorbs anything; virtually or practically the skin throws off no wastes, only salt and water and there is nothing unclean about salt and water; and every soapbox knows now that the skin does not breathe.

Heretofore the soap business has been a fairly clean line of trade. A good share of it still is clean and honest all through, but this gang of soap men that offers such balderdash for publication claims to make 75 per cent of the soap used in this country. I hope this does not hold true for the toilet and laundry soap used at our house. They will use the stuff at home, you know.

I am bravely striving to see the humorous side of this and conceal the sadness that is really in my heart. I have long cherished the sustaining thought that the soap business was one line that seemed to prosper without the aid of humbug. But, alas, even this solid support is crumbling away. The soap people have organized their own cleanliness institute and apparently they intend to tighten the holdouts into the bath.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Safe Enough

Please tell me whether it is safe to use any perspiration preventive or any of the popular preparations to prevent odor from perspiration, and if so which is safe. (F. R. S.)

Answer—Yes, Mum.

HOOT IT FOR HEALTH

Please write an article on exercise. Some say walking is of little value because it exercises only the legs. Is that true? (A. O.)

Answer—In my judgment daily walking is the best exercise one can take for health. Walking at a fairly brisk pace, exercises most of the important muscles, though of course the legs chiefly. If you swing your arms freely when you walk, and practice good posture and a springy step, you will know that your whole body is exercised by the time you've covered the six mile stint.

Leather Upholstery

We have some artificial leather furniture that was made by a person who had tuberculosis. What would you suggest to clean the leather to make it free from any germs. Our living quarters do not permit putting it in the sunshine.

Answer—Unless the leather or other upholstery is visibly soiled, no particular cleaning is necessary, and there is no danger such as you conceive. Things made by persons who have tuberculosis are not carriers of infection and are perfectly safe to use. Will the material stand a soap and water cleansing? There is nothing better as a disinfectant, that is, if you can't expose the material to sunlight.

Soft Spot

Our baby is now 26 months old and the soft spot on top of his head has not entirely grown up. Will this harm him in any way? (Mrs. M. E. J.)

Answer—No, many babies in perfect health are 28 months of age before the anterior fontanelle is completely filled with bone.

LOOKING BACKWARD

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Tuesday, May 26, 1903

John D. Rockefeller had agreed to give $50,000 to the Y. M. C. A. at Washington on condition that an additional $300,000 be raised before the following Jan. 1.

It was estimated that 200,000 men were idle in New York as a result of strikes.

Seventy new members were to be initiated into the Catholic Order of Foresters at the meeting that night.

The class plays to be given by the senior class of the Ryan high school were to be held at the Appleton theatre the following Tuesday night. They were "Consort of Herolines" and "Scrap of Paper." Memorial day exercises that day were to be held at the city park. The parade was to begin at 1 o'clock.

John Laux of Grand Chute gave a dance in his new residence the previous evening.

Gus Keller attended a meeting of the Foresters at Green Bay the previous night.

TEN YEARS AGO

Tuesday, May 21, 1918

The Wisconsin supreme court that day upheld the constitutionality of the juvenile court law of this state.

Fire of unknown origin destroyed an airplane factory in the heart of San Francisco that day.

Senator Robert M. La Follette that day demanded that charges of disloyalty filed against him by the Minnesota public safety commission be dismissed.

A big storm the previous Sunday resulted in the necessity of replanting in many parts of the county replanting their corn.

Members of the Clinton staff for that year at the high school were Theodore Gluckstein, Arthur Ingold, Norma Ferry, Gladys Mathes, Alfred Root, Alfred Galpin, Helen Mills, Letta Dambach, Constance Johnson, Rose Ryan, Josephine Bradford, Florence Schlesier, Eleanor Gladson, Walter Weeks, John Weehler, Harold Jense and Margaret O'Leary.

Mrs. S. A. Bement, Lake-est, was to entertain the Sunshine club the following Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Bement, Mrs. Mary Coon and Mrs. Ruth Sheldon were to be the hostesses.

The United States Navy has just detailed Lieut. Comdr. C. V. Weems to teach Col. Lindbergh to navigate. Now we advocate a comment on an appointment to teach General Lindbergh how to do this... and we used to think the comment on an oil-burning locomotive had a soft job. . . . Too bad we hadn't a navy when Christopher Columbus set out to discover us. A maritime sub-commission might have been assigned to show the gentleman how to sail a sail.

Senator Hiram Johnson is taking thermal whacks at both Smith and Hoover. Well, the senator is indeed about that, anyway.

These are dangerous days. A man never knows when he goes home early whether or not the lawn-mowers are going to be in the front yard.

SI CITIES REPORT GAINS
IN DIPHTHERIA WAR

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

The annual summary of deaths from diphtheria in 81 large cities of the United States compiled by the Journal of the American Medical Association, indicates an increasing success in the campaign against this dangerous disease.

Since 1920 the number of cities with rates under 10 per 100,000 has increased steadily year by year until 1927. Last year there were only 50 cities under 10 as against 58 in 1926.

In 1927, however, there were only two cities with rates over 20, whereas in previous years there have been at least four cities with this high rate.

On the other hand, from 1920 to 1924

many of the large cities of the Uni-ited States had rates varying from 50 to 125.

TWO CITIES RECORDS

New Haven and Cambridge not only had not a single case of typhoid fever during 1927, but had the lowest rate for diphtheria of any New England city. Not one death from diphtheria occurred in Cambridge in 1927.

During 1927 there was some exceedingly virulent diphtheria in the United States, which accounts for an increase in many of the death rates from this disease in several communities. The average rate was 10.43

Darling Mom:
I think I'd better tell you what happened yesterday because you may hear it from someone else. It certainly sounds shocking. I'm not certain that Norman's aunt knows about it but if she does you're bound to get it, for she won't lose any time sending the news home.

Norman came in this morning, with a bandage over one eye. I asked him if his aunt knew how he got dimmed. He said he didn't think so, but you can't tell about her. I suppose you know that Norman is here. Probably some dear friend has been in to see you by this time to let you know.

And incidentally hint that he might have come to see me. Well, I think may be he did. And what a hornet's nest he ran into!

I refer to the activities of that darling Pede. (It's impossible to dislike such a devoted person.) He was holding down the curb again with his car and giving the telephone operator on our exchange the pollywoggs trying to get my number when Norman made his entry yesterday afternoon.

I saw a chance to get out of the house. I hadn't been able to stir outside because I just knew Pede was at the point where he'd make a scene any old place. And was I wrong?

"Not me, and how?"
So used Norman if he didn't want to go out for a walk. He told you if I knew where to walk to find something exciting. He was all run down, dusty and bowed to a wisp, he said. I thought I knew where to run into a little activity. Again, did I know wrong? Not me.

He didn't have to go far either. When we stepped out onto the sidewalk I took his arm and started rather briskly away from there. Suddenly a handsome personage with flashing orbs appeared in our path and bowed low. "Ah, señora," he said. "It is so good of you to remember our engagement."

Well, that handed Norman a lot to think about. But I didn't let go his arm, so he got the drift of things right away. "Sorry," he said. "I think you've made a mistake."

"The señora probably has made a mistake," Pede said politely. "She is going for a drive with me."

Gosh, Mom, I thought I'd have time to finish this but I haven't. See you next mail. Norman's waiting!

"About an hour the meal was over. "Oh, my, I can't eat any more," said Clancy, as he stood up, and then "Gooey" upon the ground. That food, I think, was quite the best I've ever had. Now I must rest." He crawled across the grass into a nice soft place was.

Right soon he made the whole crowd roar, and Carpy cried, "Oh, dear him snore. He always eats so much, and then is tired as he can be. He is a shameful Tinymite. He doesn't even act polite toward our little visitor." The girl said, "Don't mind me."

And then the girl, who brought the food, exclaimed, "I hope that I'm not rude, but I must leave you Tinymites and go back home again. I'm very glad I met you all, and I'd be glad to have you call and see me, 'cause I think that you are real nice little

LONG LIVE THE CIRCUS THAT WE MAY LAUGH

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

CIRCUS time again! The cry of the balloon-man and the crunching of the peanut are heard in the land.

Along in May every year I begin to watch the billboards anxiously for the familiar blare of posters with their shining elephants, hop jumping ladies, and rolling clowns. What if they should not appear? So many of the things that tild us to our childhood days have gone! Will this go too?

Then when the advance men come along and the city suddenly blossoms out like an African jungle, I breathe a great sigh of relief. For one more year, at least, we are safe.

But seriously there seems to be little danger of losing the circus. The answer is obvious—the old story of supply and demand. What the public wants it will pay for, and it still wants a circus. I've seen towns where there had been no work for months, mills closed, stores going into bankruptcy, no money anywhere, pack the Big Top to its canvas walls when the circus arrived.

But I refuse to believe that this bit of fairyland that visits us each year thinks only in terms of dollars and cents. The financial end of it, after all, a gamble. Last year was an unusually wet season all over the country. Week after week, circus people lost money. Yet here they are again, not one soul disengaged. I take off my hat to the powers that reign over these diversified hosts. It is no easy game to play.

Mr. Coolidge, they, say, laughed at the clowns when he and the First Lady went to the big show in Washington. He was particularly amused by one who lugger an empty beer-barrel marked, "My hope chest."

"Honor, love and fun! That's life," says essayist. I suppose Mr. Coolidge's version might read, "I would not love thee, fun, so much, loved I not honor more." Not a bad creed to follow for all of us.

SHIRRED DRAPE

For BRIDESMAIDS

Bridesmaids' gowns use lace for their media more often than not, in this summer of frills and furbelows. Soft silk lace, in the new clear colors of soft lemon yellow, orchid, apple green, periwinkle blue, apricot, orange and so on, have a gleaming beauty all their own. With such gorgeous material, simplicity of cut increases the loveliness.

One bride who used tan chiffon with gold lace for her maid of honor, had her six bridesmaids in pastel colored silk lace frocks.

The necklines were deeper than the bridal gowns, but pointed as it did to V. The bodices were moulded and at almost the natural waistline a crushed girdle of the lace swathed the figure. The skirts were very full and were of the popular curved hemline with a longer back.

SWISS BRAID HATS

Gleaming gardenias, four in a row, decorated the right shoulder. A silver chain decorated the opposite side of the girdle.

Most unusual were their hats—Swiss lace braid, each in the color of the frock it topped. These had snug turban crowns, with large flapping brims slightly to hold them off the face. Streamers of color banded the brim and, making a bow on one side, hung to the hemline in the back.

VEIL COVERS TRAIN

Over this, one of the season's sweetest veils is worn—fashioned of illusion, with gleaming silver tracery in shadow embroidery all along its edge.

The veil forms a charming little cap, its embroidery simulating a tiara. This veil falls the full length over the train.

For the formal wedding this June, white lilies are quite the latest thing.

The bride, if she chooses, may substitute one of the shower bouquets of various white flowers.

But the stiff formality of Easter lilies epitomizes the spirit of the church ceremonial.

Contrasting with the white simplicity of the wedding dress, the bridal parties are taking to richer colors than ever before. At a recent society wedding, metal lace frocks were worn by bridesmaids—in gold, silver and bronze—with penetrating colors for sashes, slippers and flopping hats.

For the evening church wedding of

BRIDESMAIDS

Chiffon, lace, crepe de chine, brocades—just about any sumptuous material one chooses may go into the wedding gown this summer. But for the evening church wedding of the popular high noon function, nothing is quite so convincingly smart as satin.

For the formal wedding, the bridal gown should rely upon its richness and cut for its beauty. The utmost simplicity is a goal most smart brides covet. A touch of old family lace for the yoke, cuffs, inserts, or whole bodice is beautiful. But, lacking heirlooms, the satin gown, self trimmed, is the most satisfactory.

One bridal gown of classic beauty illustrates the point. It is cut on princess lines, with one of the new necklines that cuts gracefully to a wide V point.

Circular godets of unusual width are set in the bodice at the waistline and ripple to uneven side lengths, cascade into an impressive train that billows out on both sides as well as behind, sweeping the full four yards.

Club Holds Last Party For Season

A flower dance and a flash light dance were two feature dances at the last party on the social calendar of the Century club Monday night at Elk club. The hall was transformed into a Japanese garden with Japanese lanterns and trellises and arbors covered with flowers. About 40 couples were present at the dance at which the music was played by Gib. Horst orchestra.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baker were in charge of the party and they were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. J. Norman Fischer, Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Wolter, Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Carlson, Dr. and Mrs. H. K. Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Buchanan, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Rosebush, Dr. and Mrs. E. F. Mielke, Mr. and Mrs. William Kolb and Mr. and Mrs. R. Getschow.

WEDDINGS

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

HILBERT WOMAN DIES AFTER LONG ILL

GIRL ALONE

COPYRIGHT BY NEA SERVICE
ANNE AUSTIN AUTHOR OF "SWEET AND SAD"

THIS HAS HAPPENED

The summer she is 16, SALLY FORD leaves the state orphanage, the only home she knows from the time she was four, to be "farmed out" to CLEM CARSON, prosperous farmer. At the farm she finds a friend in DAVID NASH, student and athlete. Carson is furious because David prefers Sally to PEARL, his daughter. To

When he makes insulting remarks about Sally, David and Sally run away and join a carnival. David as cook's helper and Sally as "Princess Lalla," crystal gazer.

The midget, "PITY SING," likes Sally and warns her to beware of NITA, the Hula dancer, who is infatuated with David.

That night in the dress that Nita tells Sally she knows who she is, and that she is eluding the police and she threatens to inform the police. Sally, who has not before today thought of David as a sweetheart, suddenly flares up and tells Nita he is hers as long as he wants to be. The midget, who feigns sleep, pipes up shrilly at this point and threatens to tell Bybee of Nita's infamous plot. This hushes Nita's mouth, but Sally is badly frightened.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIX

The next morning—the carnival second and last day—in Stanton—Sally overslept. She did not awaken until a tiny hand tugged impatiently at her hair. Her dark blue eyes flew wide in startled surprise, then recognition of her surroundings and of "Pity Sing," the midget, dawned in them slowly.

"You looked so pretty asleep that I hated to awaken you," the midget told her. "But it's getting late, and I want my breakfast. I'm dressed."

The little woman wore a comically mature-looking dress of blue linen, made full-size, by a pattern which would have suited a woman of 40. Sally impulsively took the tiny face between her hands and laid her lips for an instant against the softly wrinkled cheek. Then she sprang out of bed, careful not to "joggle" the midget, who had been so emphatic about her distaste for being joggled.

"There's a bucket of water and a tin basin," Miss Tanner told her brusquely, to hide the pleasure which Sally's caress had given her. "All the other girls have gone to the cook tent, so you can dress in peace."

"I didn't thank you properly last night for taking my part against Nita," Sally said shyly, as she hastily drew her stockings. "But I do thank you, Betty, with all my heart. I was so frightened—for David—"

"What I said to Nita will hold her for a while," Betty Tanner, nodded with satisfaction. "But I don't trust her. She'll do something underhand if she thinks she can get away with it. But don't worry. Once the carnival gets out of this state, you and your David will be pretty safe. I don't think the police will bother about extradition, even if Nita should tip them off. In the meantime, I'll break the first law of carnival and try to learn something of Nita's past. I've seen her turn pale more than once when a detective or a policeman loomed up unexpectedly and seemed to be giving her the once-over. Oh, dear, I'm getting as bad as slanty as any of the girls," she mourned.

After Sally had splashed in the tin basin and had combed and braided her hair, she hesitated for a long minute over the new dress that had mysteriously found its way into the equally mysterious new tin trunk. She caught herself up at the thought. Of course they were not, mysterious "Pop" and Mrs. Bigbee had provided them, out of infinite kindness of their hearts. Were they always so kind to the carnival's new recruits? Gratitude welled up in her impresario-like young heart; overflowed her lips in song, as she dressed herself in the little white voile, splashed with tiny blue and yellow wild flowers.

Last night's breeze had brought with it a light, cooling shower, and still lingered under the hot caress of the June sun. Sally sang, at Betty's request, as she sped across vacant lots to the show train resting engines on a spur track. At the sound of her fresh, young voice, caroling an old song of summertime and love, David Nash thrust his head out of the little high window box of a kitchen at the end of the dining car, and waved an egg-timer at her, lips and teeth and eyes flashing gay greetings to her.

"Better tell your David how Nita's been carrying on," the midget pined from Sally's shoulder.

Song fled from Sally's throat, and heart. "No," she shook her head. She couldn't be a tattle-tale. If the orphanage had taught her nothing else it had taught her not to be a tattle-tale. Besides to talk of Nita and her thwarts would make it necessary to tell David all that Nita had said, and at the thought, Sally's cheeks went scarlet. It might kill his friendship for her to let him know that others—apparently all the carnival folk—had labeled that friendship "love." Why couldn't they let her and David alone? Why snatch up this beautiful thing, this precious friendship, and maul it about, sticking labels all over it until it was ruined?

She had placed the midget in her own little high chair at her own particular table. In the privilege car and was hurrying down the car bound for the cook tent and her own breakfast when Winfield Bybee and his wife entered. Mrs. Bybee was dressed as if for a journey of importance.

Winfield Bybee boomed out a greeting to Sally, tilting his head to peer into her smiling blue eyes.

"All dolled up and looking pretty enough to eat," he chuckled. "Ain't that a new dress?"

"Oh, yes and it fits perfectly," Sally glowed. "Thanks so very much for the trunk and the dresses. Mrs. Bybee," she added, tactfully addressing the showman's wife. "I—I'll pay you back out of my salary as I make it—"

"What are you talking about?" Mrs. Bybee demanded sternly, her eyes flashing from Sally's flushed face to her husband's. "I never bought you and dresses or a trunk. Now, you look here, Winfield Bybee. I'm a woman of a few words, and of a long-suffering disposition, but even a saint knows when she's got a stomach-ache. I swallowed your mealy-mouthed palaver about this poor little orphan, but if you're sneaking around and buying her presents behind my back, it in fresh wonder, as a child repeatedly uncovers a bit of buried treasure to be sure that it is still there.

When she bent her little head gravely over the crystal, after the carnival had opened for the day, she saw in it not other people's "fortunes" but David's flushed face, David's shy, tender eyes. David's lips curled upward in a smile. And because she was so happy she lavished happiness upon all those who thrust quarters upon Gus, the Barker, for "Princess Lalla's" mystic reading of the "past, present and future."

She had almost forgotten, in her preoccupation with the miracle which had happened to her—for she knew now that she loved David, not as a child loves, but as a woman loves—that Mrs. Bybee was undoubtedly keeping her promise to make inquiries about the woman who had given her name as Mrs. Nita Ford when she had committed Sally Ford to the care of the state 12 years before. But she was sharply reminded and filled with remorse for her forgetfulness when Gus, the Barker, leaned close over her at the end of a performance to whisper:

"The mose' ball-and-chain wants to see you in the boss' private car, kid. Better beat it over there before you put on the nose bag. Next show at one-fifteen if we can ballyhoo a crowd by then. You can tell her that Gus says you're going great!"

I bought the things for Sally, Mrs. Bybee," he said quietly. "I should have told her, or put my card in. Unfortunately I didn't have one with me," he added with a boyish grin.

"Oh!" Anger spouted out of Mrs. Bybee's jealous heart like air out of a balloon. "Reckon I'm just an old fool! God knows I don't see why I should care what this old woman-chaser of a husband of mine does, but—do! If you're ever in love, Sally, you'll understand a foolish old woman a little better. Now, young man, you take that murderous looking knife back into the kitchen and scramble a couple of eggs for me. And I guess you can give Pop a rasher of that bacon, even if it is against the doctor's orders."

And the showman, beaming again and throwing "Good mornings" right and left, marched down the aisle, his arm triumphantly about his repentant wife's shoulders.

Sally watched them for a moment, a lovely sight of tenderness and understanding playing over her sensitive face. Then she turned to David, who had not yet obeyed Mrs. Bybee's command. They smiled into each other's eyes, shyly, and the flush that made Sally's face rosy was reflected in the boy's tanned cheeks.

"I'm sorry, David. I didn't dream it was—you. Thank you, David." She could not keep from repeating his name, dropping it like a caress at the end of almost every sentence she addressed to him, as if her lips kissed the two slow, sweet syllables.

"I should have told you," David confessed in a low voice, slightly shaken with embarrassment and some other emotion which flickered behind the smile in his gold-flashed hazel eyes. "I—I thought you'd know. You need the things and I knew you didn't have any money. I've got to get back into the kitchen," he added hastily, awkwardly. She had never seen him awkward in her presence before, and she was daughter of Eve enough to rejoice. And in her shy joy her face blossomed with sudden rich beauty that made Nita, the Hula dancer, who appeared in the doorway, look old and tawdry and bedraggled, like the last ragged sunflower withering against a kitchen fence.

But not even Nita's flash of hatred and veiled warning could blight that sudden sweet blooming of Sally's beauty. She waved goodby to David, carrying away with her as she sped to the cool tent the heart-filling sweetness and tenderness of his answering smile. She took out the memory of that smile and of his boyish flush and awkwardness and the boyish flush and awkwardness of his boyish flush and awkwardness during the morning, to look at

SAMMY MANDELL DEFENDS LIGHTWEIGHT RING CROWN

Slashes, Batters Game
M'Larnin For 15 Rounds
To Gain Easy Decision

Fighting Heart of Challenger Makes Interesting Fight of Title Struggle

New York—(AP)—The lightweight division still boasts the same old ruler—dapper, clean-cut handsome Sammy Mandell—but if ever they award titles for raw courage in the prize ring, Irish Jimmy McLarnin, must be crowned king of them all.

For 15 rounds under glaring lights above a ring pitched in the center of the polo grounds, the black-haired sheik from Rockford, Ill., slashed and tore Monday night at the body and chin of the McLarnin kid.

Lefts that shot out with the sting and drive of a whip-lash cut about Jimmy's face. Short right chops closed his left eye, lefts smothered the other eye, and punches from every direction brought a stream of blood from his nose.

But there was one point Mandell, the master, could not touch. No matter how that dazzling ring general poured his batteries into Jimmy's head, crashed his hands to the body, and ripped the Irishman's head back with uppercuts, he never could reach Jimmy's heart.

There was not a dissenting voice in the disappointing crowd of less than 25,000 that gathered in the big National League ball park for the most important lightweight battle in the past five years, three times postponed because of bad weather, when Joe Humphries announced that Mandell still was champion after 15 rounds of furious battling.

For every one of those 15 rounds, McLarnin, hoping always to land the smash that would stow away the ghost of the Ghetto, piled into the champion—and into a storm of punches that battered his features almost beyond recognition. It was the attack of a youngster who didn't know what fear meant, a kid with a fighting heart that couldn't be slackened, the attack of a bulldog pup into the jaws of a fleet, slashing terrier.

CHAMP PRAISES RIVAL

Jimmy's effort, not only won him the plaudits of the crowd but the wholehearted recognition of the champ himself. But it gained him only three of the fifteen rounds and carried him on even terms with the titleholder in three others. Mandell won nine rounds by wide margins, but McLarnin, never giving up although blind on one side and rapidly losing sight on the other, made his most gallant sorties in the last two rounds.

The right that drummed once on Terri's chin and ended that fight abruptly, seemed to bother Mandell but little. Fleet and tireless, Sammy shot McLarnin's face full of left jabs from the opening going, tied up the challenger in most of the clinches, and splashed merciless right chops on Jimmy's head almost at will.

After losing the first four rounds, at times appearing so crude that Mandell held his forehead with one hand and panted him with the other, McLarnin came back to take the fifth and even the sixth on sheer aggressiveness and courage. Jimmy hammered both hands ceaselessly into Mandell's body and slowed him up.

Jimmy's cause was hopeless in the face of the champ's power, when he hammered again to even the ninth and win the tenth. On a knockout could win the 11th, after Mandell slashed and tore the challenger through the next three rounds. But that it was that McLarnin fought harder of all to gain the fourteenth round and end his title try, almost blind, bleeding profusely from the nose in a gallant last ditch struggle in the final round.

When the battle was over, and the radio beckoned the titleholder who has defended his crown only twice in three years, his first words were for the losers.

"Gee I'm tired," said Sammy. "I fought the gamest man I ever faced. I'm still the champion, but the next lightweight king will be Jimmy McLarnin."

And Jimmy, soaking his bruised head and punch-shut eyes in hot water in his dressing room, hoped Sammy spoke the truth. But the next time he promised to bring to the battle ground something besides a fighting heart, something of the craft and ringmanship that whipped him so mercilessly Monday night.

COMPLETE LEGION BALL

LEAGUE TUESDAY NIGHT

The Appleton American Legion Junior Baseball League will be completed for its 1928 season, which starts the first week of June, at meeting of managers and players at 7:30 Tuesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. according to Edward Sternard, who is handling the circuit for the Oney Johnston post. Three teams were signed up at the first call for players a week ago and the application of a fourth team was received immediately after, so that the league is ready to start.

At Tuesday's meeting players will be signed up on the regulation blank which arrived this week the schedule of games will be prepared for the summer and a set of rules and regulations for the loop will be drawn up. Managers of all four teams have been urged to be sure to attend and the meeting also is open to any boy player.

CUYLER EXPECTED TO SHINE AFTER INJURY

Kiki Cuyler, star outfielder, who was secured by the Chicago Cubs from the Pirates in the hope that he would make a pennant winner for the Cubs, will not be traded or sold, insists William Wrigley, owner of the club. Cuyler, always a heavy hitter, has done practically nothing this season but his bosses claim his disappointing work has been the result of a hand he injured badly in an exhibition game before the season opened.

HOOVER BREAKFAST HELPS TO PICTURE THEIR HOME LIFE

Both of Them Decide Day Is All Wrong Unless They Have Strawberries

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series on the wives of presidential candidates, by Allene Summer, staff writer for the Post-Crescent. Miss Summer has interviewed the leading prospective First Ladies for this series.

BY ALLENE SUMMER

Washington—The breakfast of Herbert Hoover always and invariably consists of fresh strawberries with powdered sugar and Mrs. Hoover.

This does not mean that the secretary of commerce has cannibalistic tendencies. It merely means that his day starts all wrong without both strawberries and "The Madame," as he calls Mrs. Hoover, in the bosom of the cheery Hoover home.

What's more, Mrs. Hoover just as unabashedly declares that her day's all wrong, too, if she doesn't have Herbert for breakfast. This despite the fact that Hoover breakfasts are famous in official Washington for their heartiness. There are always the strawberries when humanly possible, big platters of waffles or hot cakes with syrup, sausage or bacon and eggs, toasted bread and coffee.

The Hoover breakfasts have been almost as famous during the past administration as the pancake-and-sirup-and-sausage ones in the big White House on Pennsylvania avenue, for the Hoovers are always "at home" to their friends at breakfast time.

'TUT' IS HONORED GUEST

The Hoover breakfasts cannot be dismissed without mention of Tut, the big police dog, who quite humiliates the mistress of the Hoover breakfast table by poking his aristocratic nose over the table's edge every few minutes for nibble of toast and sausages and strawberries.

"I know that feeding dogs at table isn't done in the best families," Mrs. Hoover laughs, "but Daddy will feed Tut, and to tell the truth, I don't mind so much myself."

The Hoovers are like that at home—joyful, cheery, informal, "folksy." If there's time before she drives with "Daddy" down to the Department of Commerce building, Mrs. Hoover will show him her latest baby sacque or doilies, knitted for baby Peggy Ann, 2, whom her grandmother pronounces "the very image of her Grandfather Hoover." Peggy Ann and her senior brother, Herbert the Third, 3, are the children of Herbert Hoover, Jr., who lives in Cambridge.

There are those who will tell you that Mrs. Hoover is "highbrow." They are awed by her college degree from Stanford, her authorship of a recondite work on mining, her affiliation with this organization and that.

But the picture of Mrs. Hoover, the "highbrow," has been much more painted than that of Mrs. Hoover, the sweet-faced, gray-haired woman in the 50's, who kits whenever she sits down for a moment and who has a dozen knitting bags scattered over the lovely red brick house on S street, which

Here are two pictures of Mrs. Herbert Hoover—her name is "Lou Henry Hoover" and she thinks "every wife's first job is her home."

Who is as proud of her Italian cut-work luncheon set, with the Capitol and Lincoln Memorial design, as of her authorship and who likes nothing better than to get into a rough-and-ready jersey suit of a Sunday and go out with the secretary and any available children for a picnic with old coffee pot and skillet.

There are no frills at these Hoover picnics—no iced drinks in thermos bottles, no salads nor frozen leeks toted along in a modern picnic basket. It is rumored that Mrs. Hoover despises marshmallows at a picnic.

There'll be the old coffee pot and skillet and bacon and eggs and wieners and potatoes and corn to roast in the ashes. They say that Lou Henry Hoover is prouder of the chicken she once roasted in clay mud at a picnic than of her Library of Congress author's card.

The Hoover table is famous for plenty of good, wholesome food, "but no spun sugar doo-dads."

MARY'S MENUS

"Mary," who knows the gastronomic likes and dislikes of all official Washington, wears the descending mantle of Mark Hanna's "Maggie."

They say that Mary makes her menus according to the guest list, trying to give each guest at least one favorite dish.

The entire Hoover menu is like that. Servants usually reflect employers, had the courtesy and consideration of every servant in the Hoover home is a shining tribute to the standards of that home.

A smiling black boy throws the white door wide open the minute a car stops at the door; the visitor is ushered into the living room before any inquiries are made.

As I sat in the "Green Room" waiting for Mrs. Hoover, a smiling colored servant with a blue and white checked gingham apron tied under his chin hummed happily as he laid the mahogany table with an eruct face luncheon set. The smell of asparagus soup wafted from the kitchen.

"Don't that smell good, though, miss?" the smiling boy asked, inviting me to come and inspect his table.

"Do you like this bouquet or that one best?" he asked, trying yellow poppies and pink snapdragons.

A HOMEY PALACE

The Hoover home is that rare combination, a homey palace—a livable rich man's house. The Green Room with looped back green taffeta curtains, pink freestyles in a blue bowl, white panelled walls, was a haven for books—hundreds of them—first editions in time-seasoned morocco. Poetry, fiction, history, everything.

Hammered brasses in the form of samovars, bowls and plaques are everywhere, telling the story of the Hoovers' life in China.

Mrs. Hoover, by the way, doesn't especially like the legend which had her shooting over the barricade with Herbert during the Boxer rebellion.

"That's so luridly melodramatic," she says. "As a matter of fact I was two blocks behind the barricade and merely tried to see that the men at the barricade were well fed."

She did, though, tap the sugar and tea casks that made the barricade, in order to serve hot tea to the amateur soldiers. One knows that she forgot the gracious hostess role of cosy asking "lemon or cream?" and gave them all cream—"for dairy products are so healthful."

Samovars and coffee urns are as numerous as pictures of Herbert, second, and Herbert's children and Allan. For the Hoovers are always ready to drink a cup of tea with anyone who drops in in the afternoon.

"NO HOME WITHOUT GARDEN"

The secretary's study opens onto the porch, from which the most beautiful garden ever seen carries its prim little shelled walks down the ravine. Purple and pink and white hyacinths, yellow forsythia, lilacs, gaudy tulips and frothy bushes of white were everywhere.

"There is no home without a garden," according to Mrs. Hoover, who believes that homes—happy ones—are the most important things in the world.

"It is the right of every child to have a happy home," is one of her few creeds which Mrs. Hoover will crystallize in words. "Every wife's first job is her home," she says further, intimating that no home can contain two fully-developed individuals and that, when necessary, the wife should submerge herself to make "a background" for her husband.

Mrs. Hoover is medium height, gray-haired, with that striking combination of blue eyes and jet black eyebrows. Her skin is pink and white. Her clothes are modish but simple. She seems to prefer line to fuss and frills. She never goes to a beauty parlor, putting her own water

"I know that feeding dogs at table isn't done in the best families," Mrs. Hoover laughs, "but Daddy will feed Tut, and to tell the truth, I don't mind so much myself."

The Hoovers are like that at home—joyful, cheery, informal, "folksy." If there's time before she drives with "Daddy" down to the Department of Commerce building, Mrs. Hoover will show him her latest baby sacque or doilies, knitted for baby Peggy Ann, 2, whom her grandmother pronounces "the very image of her Grandfather Hoover." Peggy Ann and her senior brother, Herbert the Third, 3, are the children of Herbert Hoover, Jr., who lives in Cambridge.

There are those who will tell you that Mrs. Hoover is "highbrow." They are awed by her college degree from Stanford, her authorship of a recondite work on mining, her affiliation with this organization and that.

But the picture of Mrs. Hoover, the "highbrow," has been much more painted than that of Mrs. Hoover, the sweet-faced, gray-haired woman in the 50's, who kits whenever she sits down for a moment and who has a dozen knitting bags scattered over the lovely red brick house on S street, which

Salt Deposits

In America much salt is obtained from deserts where, long ages ago, salt water evaporated, leaving the salt behind in great deposits. The artist has sketched above the plowing up of desert salt in California. The salt production of the whole world amounts to more than 13,000,000 tons. Not all of it is eaten; some is used for chemical purposes and for preservation.

By NEA. Through Special Permission of the Publishers of the Book of Knowledge. Copyright, 1923-28.

This shows the bottom of a salt shaft at Slatnic, Rumania. The shaft produces 80,000 tons of rock salt every year.

Here is sketched a scene in the great mine at Wieliczka, Poland, where the rock salt is hewn out of the wall. Ponies, many of which are blind, draw the carts laden with salt, and 2000 men work in the mine day and night. The mine is lighted throughout with electricity and is a sort of underground city. It has been worked since the thirteenth century.

APPLETON MAN FACES SERIOUS CHARGE IN COURT AT OSHKOSH

Albert Beltz Charged With Fourth Degree Manslaughter

Albert Beltz, 239 N. Green Bay-st, was bound over for trial on a charge of fourth degree manslaughter following a preliminary hearing in municipal court at Oshkosh Monday. Judge Goss denied a motion to discharge the action saying the mere showing of possible negligence was sufficient to bind the man over for trial, aside of the contention of the state that he was drunk at the time of the accident.

Beltz was the driver of the car which went into the ditch on Highway 41 about three miles south of Appleton on March 28. Gordon Collesic, Appleton, one of the occupants, sustained serious injuries in the crash.

Dr. David Collesic, Appleton, was questioned as to the injuries to Collesic and he testified on cross-examination that he found alcohol on Collesic's breath when he examined him after the accident. James Lyman, chief of police at Menasha, said he found a portion of a pint of alleged moonshine in the car after the crash.

Beltz is to appear in court at Oshkosh on June 15 to plead to the information in his case.

Entire First Platoon Will Practice With Pistols and Machine Guns

The entire first platoon of Co. D, 127th infantry, Wisconsin National Guard will take part in machine and pistol practice on the company range on School Section rd Sunday morning. Fifteen men were on the range last Sunday, firing being confined only to machine guns. Sergeant Joseph Dwyer of the regular army is acting as instructor.

The first formal announcement of the dates of the annual guard encampment this summer were made at drill Monday evening at Armory G. The company will go into camp this year from July 28 to Aug. 11. Efforts will be made to have all men in the company attend camp. There still are a half dozen vacancies in the company roster and enlistments will be accepted by any of the commanding officers.

The program outlined for camp this year includes an overnight movement to Camp McCoy at Sparta with regular battle maneuvers on the range there. The regular infantry camp at Camp Williams, formerly known as Camp Douglas.

COMMISSION REFUSES TO CHANGE ZONE LAW

Will Not Place Greenspoon Property in Local Business District

The city plan commission again refused to place the property on the corner of N. Alvin and W. Wisconsin in the local business district at their meeting Monday afternoon. One of the lots which was asked to be placed in the district was the Greenspoon property.

The commission stated in denying the permit there was no need for the business district and when property owners near the corner intimated they would rather see Greenspoon running a store than a junk yard as he now is doing, the commission said a complaint against the junk yard was for the board of health, not the plan commission.

Members of the commission also approved the revised zoning ordinance and several changes which have been made. The ordinance was revised by L. Hugo Keller, revisor of city ordinances with the approval of Leonard S. Smith, city planner.

SOCIAL WORKERS GO TO MARINETTE MEET

Mr. John Engle, Jr., Miss Agnes Vanneman and Miss Elinor L. Strickland left Tuesday to attend the Northeast Wisconsin Regional Conference on Social Welfare at Marinette. The conference will be held from Tuesday to Thursday under the auspices of the Wisconsin Conference of Social Work.

The conference will take the form of round table discussions. On Tuesday discussion of family social work in cities of less than 50,000 population and administration of public poor relief and child welfare will be held. Wednesday the delegates will discuss child and maternity welfare clinics and will talk over the advisability of establishing the clinics in communities without a full time health organization. At the conference dinner they will take up the problem of the need in Wisconsin for a children's code, and will listen to a talk on the ideals of girls' grading schools. Thursday, poor relief again will be taken up, as well as the problems of child welfare and illegitimacy in the state.

MAY TAKE LIBRARY BOOKS FOR INDEFINITE PERIOD

Appleton residents who plan to spend the summer at the lakes and wish a supply of books may borrow them from the public library for an extended period, according to Miss Florence Day, librarian. Others who contemplate a long trip and wish an extra supply of reading matter may take books with them, the librarian noted.

The practice of loaning books for an extended period during the summer has been in force at the library for several years. Under ordinary conditions several books may be taken at one drawing but during the summer the practice is amended to permit taking books for several weeks rather than the customary 14 days.

ALDERMEN TALK OF CHANGING ZONE LAW

Would Amend Ordinance to Permit Building Apartment in Residence District

Indications that a move may be started soon by Appleton aldermen to change the zoning ordinance and permit apartment houses in residential districts is contained in comment of several city officials who would like to see an apartment house placed on the Richardson property on S. Durkee.

Under the zoning law, as now written, an apartment house must be built in the commercial or light manufacturing district and is prohibited in a residential district. The aldermen do not approve this regulation and many have expressed opinion the law should be changed. They believe that an apartment house is not objectionable in a residential section and that in many cases the apartments add rather than detract from property value in the district.

The first formal announcement of the dates of the annual guard encampment this summer were made at drill Monday evening at Armory G. The company will go into camp this year from July 28 to Aug. 11. Efforts will be made to have all men in the company attend camp. There still are a half dozen vacancies in the company roster and enlistments will be accepted by any of the commanding officers.

FORMER LOCAL BOY HELD FOR FORGERY

Harold Riley, 21, is Held After Cashing Worthless $7 Check

Harold Riley, 21, 201 S. Baldwin-st, Madison, a former Appleton boy, is being held at the Appleton police station to face charges of forgery. He was arrested Monday by Detective Mathew McGinnis.

A $7 check, made out to Riley and signed by John Bartmann, was cashed by Riley at the Sunlight Grocery, 226 N. Meade-st. It is charged that the signature of Mr. Bartmann was forged. The young man told the police he left Appleton some time ago and went to Chicago, returning to Appleton last week. The check was made out on May 20.

Riley is to be taken into municipal court Tuesday afternoon. George T. Prim, chief of police, said. The young man confessed to police, the chief said, that he cashed a number of other forged checks and police were attempting Tuesday to secure some of these.

APPLETON LEGION POST SEVENTH IN CAMPAIGN

Once Johnston post of the American Legion ranks seventh among Wisconsin Legion posts with memberships over 400 showing an increased enrollment up to May 18, according to word from Milwaukee. The post now has 38 members more than it had as a high mark last year. The Electric post at Milwaukee is high followed by posts at Superior, Green Bay, Kenosha, La Crosse and Fond du Lac.

POLICE DEPARTMENT TO GET NEW MOTORCYCLE

Sleepy Driver Wrecks Saloon At Little Chute

Minor injuries were sustained by J. S. Zamp, Milwaukee motion picture salesman, when he fell asleep at the wheel of his car on Highway 41 in the village of Little Chute about 1:30 Tuesday morning and the machine crashed into the front of Peter Kildon's soft drink parlor.

The heavy sedan tore the entire front out the building and entered the building so far that the bar on the inside was knocked over. Mr. Zamp suffered a severe cut on one arm and slight cuts to his face from flying glass.

James Gerrits, village marshal, was called to the scene of the accident and took Zamp to a hotel at Appleton. His car was taken to a Little Chute garage with the front end almost demolished. It was estimated that damages to Kildon's building would exceed $500.

Mr. Zamp said he was on his way from Green Bay to Milwaukee and that he intended to drive at night because he was overdriven.

Several hundred people living within two blocks of the accident were awakened by the crash as four large windows were shattered and the glass was scattered in all directions. Many people hurried to the scene of the accident.

ASK FOR AIR MAIL ROUTES FOR STATE AT MILWAUKEE MEET

Will Petition U. S. Postal Department to Establish New Lines

Establishment of one or more air mail routes providing complete service to important cities in Wisconsin was asked in a resolution adopted at the second Wisconsin Air Mail conference at Milwaukee Monday, according to F. F. Wettengel, acting Appleton postmaster, who attended the meeting.

The conference authorized the air service committee of the Milwaukee Association of Commerce, which sponsored the meeting, to petition the United States Postal department to establish additional routes connecting the present Chicago-Twin Cities route.

Signatures of 70 representatives from 17 Wisconsin and upper Michigan cities will accompany the petition, as predicted for the upper lake regions, with a rise in temperature.

Tentative schedules suggested by the conference included a Fox river valley route from Milwaukee to Green Bay and then through Wausau, Eau Claire and Chippewa Falls to Superior, Minn., through Menomonie and Marinette.

A weekly round trip passenger and express service between Milwaukee and Appleton will start June 1, E. R. McRitt, chief pilot of the North American Airways announced.

Cities represented at the conference were Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Appleton, Green Bay, Sheboygan, Manitowoc, Kohler, Sheboygan Falls, West Bend, Stevens Point, Wausau, Menomonie, Escanaba and Muskegon. Three visitors flew down from Stevens Point and six from Appleton.

HOUSE OVERIDES PRESIDENT VETO

Takes Action on Increased Pay for Night Work in Post-offices

Washington — (P) — For the second time during the Coolidge administration and the first time this season the house Tuesday over-rode a presidential veto. It was on a postal pay increase measure.

The vote was 319 to 42 or considerably more than the two thirds necessary to approve the measure in the face of presidential disapproval. The only other time that the house has passed a bill after a veto by President Coolidge was when it approved the soldiers' bonus measure.

The postal bill would provide for ten per cent additional pay to night workers of the postal service. It was vetoed by the president last week on the ground that the postal service already was a heavy drain upon the treasury and that the additional money would add more than $6,000,000 to this burden.

Final enactment of the legislation is subject to a two thirds vote of the Senate.

LEGION COUNTY COUNCIL MEETS AT HORTONVILLE

New officers will be elected at the regular monthly meeting of the Outagamie County council of the American Legion at Hortonville, Wednesday evening. A dinner will precede the business meeting. Representatives from all posts in the county are members of the council. The last meeting of the organization was held at Appleton.

Three building permits, all for minor improvements, were issued Tuesday morning by the city engineer's office. They were to Ed Brinkman, 1105 N. The findings of the deputy are open to inspection in his office at the city hall.

THERE'S AT LEAST ONE IN EVERY COMMUNITY

Once Johnston post of the American Legion ranks seventh among Wisconsin Legion posts with memberships over 400 showing an increased enrollment up to May 18, according to word from Milwaukee. MAJORITY OF LOCAL RETAILERS O.K. PLAN FOR CLOSING CHANGE

Petition Reveals That Most of Them Would Keep Stores Open Friday Nights

A petition circulated among Appleton merchants during the past few days reveals that the sentiment for closing stores on Saturday nights and remaining open Friday nights instead is for the change by a majority of about four to one, according to proponents of the plan.

The circulation of the petition followed a meeting here last Thursday night at which a disagreement occurred at a time when it seemed certain that the plan would be adopted. Representatives were there from Sheboygan, Fond du Lac, Neenah-Menasha and Kaukauna.

Two meetings were held Tuesday morning when the results of the petition became known. One was by a group favoring the change which discussed the proposition and arrived at a decision on their plan of action. It was decided that the plan beginning with Friday June 1, would be adopted.

The opposing group decided that they would continue to remain open Saturday night for a period of several weeks and if at the end of that time they find the farmer and labor trade favoring the new plan, they too, will adopt the change.

The decision of the two groups followed a careful consideration of the situation from the laborers, farmers, employees and merchants who view points differently.

About 50 representative stores have signed the petition and given tentative promises for the adoption of the resolution which included that it be resolved that the stores individually and jointly pledge themselves to cooperate in securing the general adoption of the plan.

The two oldest alumni attending the homecoming were Mrs. Herman Buck and Mrs. Charles Buck of Hortonville. They attended the Cedar Grove school in 1862 and 1863. Henry Culbertson, another alumni, gave a history of the school tracing its development from the little log cabin located in a clearing in the woods to the present time.

W. MacIntyre, editor of the Wisconsin Farmer, gave an address in which he stressed the importance of cooperation between parents and the school and he also asked for more interest in the better schools contest which is being conducted by his magazine.

The meeting started Sunday morning and a bountiful lunch was served at noon. After noon the program was presented. Mrs. Fred McCrary, Neenah, and Mrs. Arthur Clark, Winneconne, sang vocal solos. Neel Clark, a pupil, gave the welcome address. A reading was given by Gerald Hieber and songs were sung by Lorraine and Luther Hieber.
